

Touratech special parts for Husqvarna

THE latest custom-made parts and accessories from Touratech are designed to allow sports enduro enthusiasts to customise their Husqvarna TE 250/310/450/510 and TE 630 models to ensure maximum functionality and field utility.

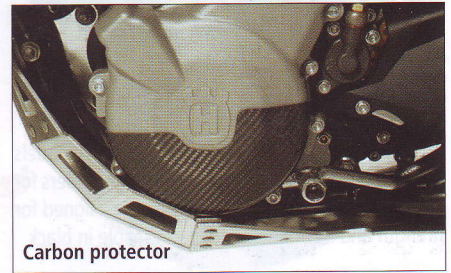

The engine guard is a must for extreme enduro riders, according to the company, and is for Husqvarna models from 2009 model year onwards (2010 for the TE 250). It is made from impact-resistant 3mm aluminium alloy and enables the rider to "slide over" rocks, as well as being a solid contact point for any common motocross-style box stand. Maintenance remains possible without problems thanks to the quick assembly and disassembly. The engine guard is provided with fitting instructions and all materials required for fitting.

Certain parts such as the pinion gear guard and cover, handlebar ends or the protective plate for the oil inspection glass are made of red anodised aluminium and offer aesthetic appeal as well as excellent protection.

The convenient cable-tie holder mounted below the petrol cap is a good example of how much Touratech engineers focus on practical utility, while a small luggage rack enables the rider to go off-road but still take some luggage, and recovery straps enable retrieval of the machine in the event of a serious problem. Low footpegs made of stainless steel are a simple way of making the Husqvarna more comfortable and ergonomic for taller riders, the company says, and the radiator protector offers solid protection in case of a crash.
